Editor's Notes

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Parole can present this volume to you with current guidelines for authors. We would remind you that there are some changes. Therefore, we provide a new template and examples of presenting tables or figures and pictures, and references. In addition, we require the authors to write manuscripts in English --for making them more got accessed and use APA styles citations both in-text and list citations (reference list). We publish the manuscripts in several subject areas namely both micro and macro linguistics, and language teaching.

This volume specifically presents five topics namely honorifics in West Cirebon, Indonesia, critical evaluation of qualitative reports and their contribution to educational research, typology and feature checking of WH-questions, cooperative principles and conversational implicature in Tahilalats comic strips, and critical analysis on “Baby Shark song”. Wiwik Afifah investigated honorifics in West Cirebon, Indonesia to see the forms, factors, and principles in using the honorifics in West Cirebon. The next author, Mukhlash Abrar presents a theoretical exploration and critical analysis on qualitative research report and their contribution to educational research. Ma Daoshan studied natural languages from syntactic behavior perspectives of WH-questions in order to show language typology. Herlandri Eka Jayaputri analyzed Tahilalats comic strips. Muhammad Arif and Sulis Triyono studied critically a very popular Korean song “Baby Shark” composed by the Pinkfong, a South Korean Media Startup. Their study focuses on the composer’s attitudes and the social relations among the participants represented in the song lyrics. In analyzing the song, they analyzed the appraisals connected to their social context.

It is impossible for publishing this edition without any helps from other parties. Therefore, in this note, we would like to express our gratitude to the Dean of the Faculty of Humanities, Diponegoro University, Dr. Redyanto Noor, M.Hum for the funding, the Department Head of Linguistics, Dr. Agus Subiyanto, M.A., and all the reviewers involved in this journal.
